WIDEN GAP IN SMOLENSK LINE

Russians Capture Velizh, 65 Miles Northwest of Important Nazi Base.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 21 — Blasting into the Smolensk defense zone to outflank that German central front anchor, Red army forces pushed on today from captured Velizh, 65 miles to the northwest, while further south they slashed across the Kiev-Chernigov highway and hit the main Crimean escape railway between Zaporozhe and Dniepropetrovsk.

The Moscow communique disclosed an amazing list of triumphs by the hard-slugging Russian troops, including the start of a great wheeling movement pointed toward Cherkassy, key rail center on the Dnieper southeast of Kiev, in an attempt to entrap hundreds of thousands of German troops reported massed in the river bend.

More than 1,150 towns and villages fell before the Soviet advances, the Russian war bulletin said. The enemy left more than 10,000 dead on the field of battle, the Russians said.

Red army airmen smashed an apparent German attempt to evacuate the Caucasus, when they sank an enemy minesweeper and three troop barges south of the Taman peninsula, above the recaptured port of Novorossisk.

While the whole German front appeared to be crumbling under the battering by the Red army, the Nazi situation in the Smolensk theater verged on the precarious, front line reports indicated. Here the Russians apparently were hurling in concentrations of artillery, infantry, aircraft and tanks to clear the swamps and mine-filled forests around that bastion. Yesterday's advance carried them within 30 miles of the stronghold.

Council Votes Down Proposal for Change To Slow Time Here

Ordinance Fails To Pass as Emergency Measure; Final Action on Electric Rate Ordinance Held Over Till Next Monday.

An ordinance proposing to move Marion clocks back an hour beginning the first Sunday in October was voted down by city council last night.

Five councilmen voted in favor of the change, four against it. Because the ordinance was written as an emergency measure, to become effective immediately if passed instead of waiting the usual 30-day period to go into effect, it required a two-thirds vote for passage. Consequently, it lost by one vote.

Council also was divided on whether to take final action last night on the proposed new electric rate contract, and in a split vote decided against a suspension of the three-reading rule that would have cleared the way for final action last night. As a result, the electric contract will get its third and final reading at a regular meeting next Monday night and come up at that time for final action. Two councilmen voted against suspending the rules for the final reading last night, and one did not arrive in time to vote on it.

CIO Speakers Heard

The time change action followed a brief discussion in which councilmen and two representatives of the CIO Industrial Union council took part. The CIO speakers, E. J. Schweinfurth and James Jenkins, urged that Marion be left on Eastern War Time to avoid confusion with the railroads, bus lines, some war industries obligated to stay on fast time and the federal government which operates on war time. Mr. Schweinfurth said he was fully aware of the school problem and knew that children soon would be going to school in the dark unless a change were made, but he asserted the schools could revise their hours more easily and with less confusion than to move the city's official time back an hour.

First opposition among councilmen came from Councilman Pearl Sells, who asked that the matter be carried over for a week. He said the persons he had talked to in the last week were about equally divided on the question and he wished further expressions of opinion before deciding. Several other councilmen said they had heard a majority of opinions in favor of slow time for winter months, and said they were ready to vote. Councilman William Simmons, sharing Mr. Sells' view, made a motion to carry the proposal over to the next meeting, but there was no second to the motion.

Says Many Cities Changing

Councilman Perry Bachelder pointed out most of Ohio's principal cities are changing to slow time for the winter, and said he thought the confusion would be greater, not less, if Marion failed to change. Councilman Earle Johnson echoed this opinion and said most of the shops have no objection to the change. Councilman W. G. Slack said most of the persons he talked to favored changing.

During an informal caucus earlier in the evening at the mayor's office, Mayor Snare said representatives of the Wilson-Bohannon Co. and the Fairfield Engineering Co. had indicated to him they favored slow time for the winter, and that the city schools had asked that the change be made to save children from going to school in the darkness.

When the matter came up for a final vote, Councilmen Robinson, Simmons, Barnhart and Sells voted "No" and Councilmen Rea, Bachelder, Wilhelm, Slack and Johnson voted "Yes."

If all the councilmen "stand pat" in their views, it would be possible to bring another time change ordinance before council, give it three separate readings and bring it up for action, not as an emergency measure but as a regular piece of legislation. Under those circumstances, council-

Mrs. Carrol Rowley of 972 Bennett street has received word of the death of her brother, Pvt. Arthur Winn of Eaton, O., which occurred Sept. 15, somewhere in Iceland where he was serving with the U. S. Coast Artillery. Word of his death was received Sunday by Pvt. Winn's mother, Mrs. Mary Winn of Eaton, in a telegram from the war department. The telegram did not give the cause of death and stated that a letter would follow.

Pvt. Winn was known in Marion, having visited his sister here. He was one of six sons of Mrs. Winn in service. He was 27 years old and had been in service since October 1941. He went with the armed forces to Iceland in August 1942. Prior to going into service he was employed at a lawnmower works in Richmond, Ind.

MOVIE WORK NEARLY DONE

Hollywood Group Expected To Finish Marion Scenes Wednesday Afternoon.

Marionites who have failed to see the Twentieth Century-Fox location company at work in filming scenes for "Home in Indiana" still have another day. The company, made up of 94 persons, is expected to complete scenes for the $2,000,000 technicolor production tomorrow afternoon.

R. E. "Duke" Goux, production manager, announced yesterday that the company would leave Thursday morning for Lexington, Ky., unless production is delayed by adverse weather. However, a possibility that the trip to Kentucky would be delayed was seen in the announcement this morning that June Haver, one of the featured feminine players, has been absent from the fairgrounds for two days because of a cold.

Starlet Ill

Miss Haver, who plays the role of Cri Cri Beale, granddaughter to Godaw Beale (Charles Dingle), owner of a string of harness horses, is featured in several scenes which must be filmed here before the company can move on to the Walnut Hall Farms near Lexington, Ky.

Yesterday afternoon's shooting schedule was held up considerably because of the clouded condition of the skies. However, several scenes were made in the morning and the day, as a whole, was described as successful by Director Henry Hathaway.

Scenes made yesterday centered around stable activity. However, one of two scenes were filmed around the grandstand. For these shots more than 110 extras were employed. Practically the same group that has served with the location company since its arrival in Marion was on the fairground yesterday.

May Visit Delaware

If weather conditions interrupted today's shooting schedule, it was expected that many members of the troupe who have grown racing conscious since the start of the film would attend the opening session of the Grand Circuit harness meeting being staged at Delaware in connection with the Delaware county fair program.

Throughout the day yesterday many spectators were on hand to watch the film makers at work.

NAZI RETREAT CONTINUES IN SALERNO AREA

Gen. Clark's Americans and British Troops Take Town 16 Miles Inland.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 21 — American Liberators from new weight into the conquest of Italy by bombing the historic port of Venice as French troops and native guerrillas proceeded today to mopping up German resistance on Corsica and the U. S. Fifth Army registered new gains in the Salerno beachhead.

Slowly and steadily pressing the Germans backward, the Fifth Army stormed and took the key town of Eboli, 16 miles inland, which had served the enemy as a communications center during last week's heavy fighting about Salerno.

General Mark W. Clark's soldiers also battered their way to Montecorvino, nine miles inland, in a sustained push, an official source disclosed.

A military spokesman also announced the Germans are sweeping the lower end of a line which formerly enclosed the Salerno bridgehead to the north and east to avoid being trapped by the continued rapid advance of the British army.

Cross Sele river

This retreat already has taken the bulk of the German forces north of the Sele river.

The Germans are using infantry supported by small groups of tanks to fight a delaying action in the Eboli area and the Fifth army also was reported encountering elaborate minefields and demolitions in its slow but continued advance north of Salerno.

The enemy possesses excellent defensive positions in the hill country north and northeast of Salerno, the spokesman said, and the progress of the allied troops is necessarily slow in such terrain.

German prisoners were quoted in official reports from the front as giving eloquent testimony of the devastating effect of incessant allied air attacks on retreating German columns.

Cairo headquarters, reporting the bombing of Venice, said one explosion caused there was followed by a column of smoke 3,000 feet high but the full results of the attack were obscured by clouds.

Liberators based on the Middle East also hit railway yards and bridge approaches at the Adriatic port of Pescara.

(It was announced officially at Cairo, also, that the RAF had extended allied air domination of the Mediterranean by landing on and starting operations from the Italian Dodecanese island of Cos (Cos.)

Most of Corsica's Italian garrison of about 40,000 men has joined native guerrillas and French troops landed from fast French warships in a fight to wipe out the German forces on the island, an official announcement said today.

The announcement, issued by the allied naval command, declared that French destroyers of the latest design, which are among the world's finest warcraft, had dashed into Ajaccio harbor with troops and supplies after a first visit was paid by a French submarine. This submarine joined the French navy after a daring flight from a French port last November.

Some nights later the same warships made a second fast trip to Ajaccio with more men, guns and other equipment.

Rural Returns Awaited

Robert E. White, drive chairman, declared a study this morning indicated that only about 25 per cent of the expected rural total has come in so far and he said he and E. J. Schoenlaub, chairman of the county War Finance committee, would immediately turn their attention to bringing the rural showing into line with other phases of the campaign. "Apparently we must do even a greater job of selling the importance of war bond buying in the rural areas," he said. He also voiced confidence that concerted action among the rural drive workers would bring the rural total into line by the time the drive ends on Sept. 30.

Series E Sales Low

Marion county, despite its unusual showing, has not yet performed to the satisfaction of the campaign leaders, a bulletin issued by the Marion County War Finance committee yesterday showed. The bulletin points out that an analysis of the purchases to date "shows that corporation purchases have been far above expectations, but individual purchases are way low." It explains that the sale of Series E bonds in the county and up until late last week amounted to $242,862.50 while the committee had hoped that this series would produce at least three quarters of a million dollars.

Consequently, leaders pointed out, the corporations have done far more than their share of buying and have been responsible for

FRENCH FIGHT FOR CORSICA

Giraud's Men Land on Home Soil To Battle Nazis for Island.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 21 — French troops were battling on the soil of metropolitan France today for the first time since the collapse of the republic in the spring of 1940 as commandos from North Africa fought side by side with patriots of the mountainous island of Corsica against the German garrison.

Announcement of the landing of the Commandos, some of the forces which took part in the Tunisian campaign, came in a terse communique issued last night in Algiers by Gen. Henri Giraud. The communique gave no details of the fighting, but said it had taken a favorable turn.

The Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet, publishing dispatches from German controlled Marseille, said, however, that French forces had occupied Ajaccio, Corsica's capital and an air and naval base, after a sharp fight with the Germans.

The Nazis were said to have retired to the eastern shore of the island where they were receiving reinforcements from the Italian mainland and the island of Elba. The German garrison also was augmented by troops withdrawn from Sardinia, seven miles to the south, from which the Nazis were driven over the week-end by Italian forces.

It was hoped here that the French forces, bolstered by Italian troops, would quickly subdue the Nazis, estimated to number about two divisions or between 25,000 and 30,000 officers and men.

MARSHALL DECLARES BIG BLOWS NEAR

By The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 21—Great offensives in which the full strength of America's armed forces will be hurled against the enemy in Asia and Europe are "just about to begin," Gen. George C. Marshall said today.

Addressing the American Legion convention, Marshall said there appeared to be some public misunderstanding of the recent allied successes, a tendency to believe that the final steps of the war were being taken.

On the contrary, he said in a prepared speech, the last year and a half has been spent largely in preparation for operations of the large forces still to go into action, in establishing bases for future campaigns.

MASS INVASION FROM WEST TO HIT CONTINENT

Course in Italy Defended; Declares No Time Lost Needlessly.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 21 — Prime Minister Churchill declared today that the second front will be thrown open "at the right time" and "a mass invasion of the continent from the west will begin."

Calling the Mediterranean battle the "third front," the prime minister told commons that the second front "already exists potentially" and "already is rapidly gathering weight. * * * The second front exists and is a main preoccupation already with the enemy."

"It has not yet been thrown into play," he continued. "That time is coming."

"At what we and our American allies judge to be the right time the door will be thrown open and a mass invasion of the continent from the west will begin."

Surveys Whole War

Surveying the whole sweep of the war with serene confidence, Churchill also declared:

1. Not a moment was lost needlessly in the operation against Italy and except for the failure of Italian guards to do their assigned duty Benito Mussolini would have been shot when Hitler's agents rescued him at Gran Sasso.

2. American forces have landed on the island of Sardinia to assist Italian troops who drove the German garrison over to Corsica, now being occupied by French units.

3. A tripartite conference of representatives of the United States, Britain and Russia will take place "at an early date" and no question will be barred from discussion. Any differences will be set aside for a conference of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and the prime minister himself.

4. The allies are prepared to place large armies in Italy and to deploy a weighty and active fighting front against the enemy on whatever line he chooses, to resist and to maintain against him with increasing weight if need be through the fall and winter.

5. A French army of 300,000 to 400,000 is being steadily organized and the battleship Richelieu will soon take its place in the French fleet.

Conference Coming

Speaking of the prospect of a Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference, the prime minister said:

"No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion."

Churchill's speech, longest in his career as prime minister, lasted two hours and seven minutes. He spoke for an hour and 15 minutes, stopped for lunch, and then picked up where he left off.

The prime minister, appearing before commons in his first full-scale report on the course of the world wide struggle since his historic conference with President Roosevelt at Quebec, spoke out sharply against those who had accused the allied leadership of bungling in Italy.

The date on which the Italian invasion had originally been planned, he told the house, was Sept. 15, but it was moved up as the result of decisions taken before the fall of Mussolini, and what has taken place in any case would have happened in Italy at the earliest possible moment."

Breaks Speech for Lunch

Churchill went to the house loaded for bear—with one of the longest speeches of his career. He began at noon and broke off and hour and a quarter later for lunch, after which he resumed speaking.

He termed the Naples invasion the "most daring amphibious operation we have yet launched or which I think ever has been launched on a similar scale in the war."

He explained that the allies could not have gone further north unless they had dispensed with aid from shorebased aircraft — a fact which the Germans must have known.

Even in landing at Naples, he said, allied forces were dependent "to an important extent" upon carrier-borne aircraft in which the allies are becoming stronger and stronger.

Churchill told commons today that the Mediterranean campaign is not "a substitute for a direct attack across the channel on the

Spread of Bingo Games Feared As New Law Restricts Numbers

By The Associated Press

A Cleveland law enforcement officer predicted today that bingo games would fill new vacant storerooms and give police a new headache since a new state law provides heavy penalties for writers and promoters of "numbers" chances and bingo games for personal profit.

Detective Lt. David Kerr, Cleveland vice squad head, said "there will be at least 50 games in operation this afternoon, and that's only the beginning.

"There won't be a single vacant storeroom or clubroom in town in a month. I look for as many as 100 games to be in operation in the near future.

"We will do everything [illegible] to enforce the law but it is a rigorous one."

The [illegible] and six to 10 months imprisonment for a first offense and a fine of $500 to $1,000 and from one to seven years in the penitentiary for a second offense.

The law permits bingo games for charitable and religious purposes.

City officials and police throughout Ohio generally were puzzled over how they would differentiate between legal and outlawed bingo games, wondered if there were "bugs" in the law and waited to see if any "numbers" operators would risk arrest for a test case.

The law, effective today, provides a $500 fine or six months imprisonment, or both, for a first offense for selling a "policy" or "numbers" ticket and a fine of $500 to $1,000 or a one-to-three-year penitentiary term, or both, for a second offense.

Guide for Churches

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An overseas chaplain, Evans T. Moseley, has polled a number of chaplains on what local congregations can do for the man on foreign soil. The results of his survey were released by Chief of Chaplains William R. Arnold.

Here are the eight suggestions put forward by overseas chaplains:

1. Prayer for those absent at war. Prayer calendars may be devised.

2. Write to them. Devise ways of keeping the names of the men before the members. Give them news, trivial events which make church life interesting.

3. Write to their chaplains.

4. Send devotional helps — church bulletins, Bible lessons, etc.

5. Keep in touch with their families. Strengthen them.

6. Honor them in stated services. Some churches call the servicemen's roll every Wednesday night.

7. Show interest in the returning of those on furlough or on sick leave.

8. Keep the churches worth returning to.

Wants Citizens Back

AUSTIN, Tex. — Dr. Walter P. Webb, University of Texas professor just returned from Queens College in England, says he heard more bickering and complaining within 15 minutes after he returned to the United States than he did in England in nine months.

"But it is an indication that the people feel that they are free and I wouldn't want it otherwise," he added.

The United States possesses about 60 per cent of the world's coal supply.

Irving Klaw Is King-Pin of The Pin Up Fad

AP Features

NEW YORK—Irving Klaw is king-pin of the pin-ups. He sells thousands of photographs of current and past film heart throbs to the stage struck of the nation, and judging by his business, there must be one in every family.

Packed in his tiny store on East 14th street are two and a half million stills of some 4,000 film personalities from Fatty Arbuckle to Vera Zorina. Mail dumped in Klaw's lap each morning brings all kinds of letters from everywhere—lots of them from service men, including colonels and captains.

"Cheesecake is a good morale factor," one C.O. wrote. "I want to distribute these photographs in the recreation room."

Some letters arrive in stern military form: 'Subject — Pin-Ups; To: Irving Klaw," but no matter what the format, Betty Grable, Janet Blair, Betty Hutton and Jean Harlow are the names which turn up most frequently. There's also a steady demand for stars of yesteryear.

Women in uniform are not immune from the pin-up craze. They go for Clark Gable, Alan Ladd and George Montgomery. Then there's the elderly lady who collects child star pictures, a man who has a standing order for tattooed players, and another who doesn't care what a girl looks like as long as she has long hair.

Largest Order

Biggest order to date came from a man in Ohio who is making a scrapbook including everybody who's ever been under a Klieg light. He asked for 12,000 photographs. It took Klaw and his sister Pauline three months to fill that order.

Somehow, the Klaws know exactly where to put their hands on just the right pictures, which they purchase in quantity from motion picture companies and sell from 10 cents to $1 each.

Klaw takes a philosophical view of the whole pin-up craze. "It's just an escapist measure," he says.

Record Mileage

By The Associated Press

LONDON—The crew of the Swinton tanker British Consuls believe they have put more miles in a single voyage than any other—by the war started, she has carried over 250,000 miles of ocean, more than the distance between the earth and the moon.

Some of her other achievements around the records, too. To load and discharge her vital cargoes of gasoline, she has been in 15 countries, including Australia, Malaya, and the United States.

To these countries she has carried 258,000 tons, or 75,000,000 gallons of gasoline to feed the engines of bombers, tanks and trucks in every part of the world where British fighting men are engaged.

First Aid For Your Electrical Appliances

It's easy to change a FUSE . . . but do be careful

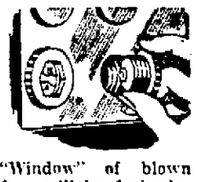
What are fuses? Fuses are "safety valves" that protect your wiring and appliances. The main idea of a fuse is to provide a weaker link of wire to "burn" or "blow out" if too much current tries to pass through. An overloaded circuit, too many appliances on the same line, bare wires rubbing together in a frayed cord, are some of the more common causes of blown fuses.

Usually the Main Switch is right beside the meter.



"Window" of blown fuse will be dark—inside wire broken.

Screw in the new fuse just as you would a light bulb.

1. Find Out What's Wrong . . . and fix it. Disconnect all cords and appliances on the circuit that has "blown." Is one of them defective? If not, did you have too many hooked onto one circuit? If you don't remedy the trouble, the new fuse will "blow" in a few minutes, too.

2. Pull Off the Main Switch before attempting to replace a fuse. That cuts off all electricity into the house, and avoids any danger of shock in replacing fuse.

3. Use the Correct Size Fuse when you replace the old one. Probably the one that has "burned out" was right. If you have a lot of trouble with blown fuses, though, it's better to have repairman check up.

4. Stand on a Dry Board when you change a fuse. Or a wooden chair or ladder. Never stand on a damp or cement floor or on the ground.

5. Always Keep a Stock of Fuses on Hand, so that you can change them in an emergency. Be sure each fuse bears the Fire Underwriters' label.

6. Don't Ever Use Substitutes for Fuses. Fuses are safety devices to signal when something is wrong. Makeshifts are dangerous; they won't warn you.

Nine Interview WAVE Recruiter in Marion

Ensign Jean Courtney of the naval procurement office in Detroit interviewed nine girls who were interested in enlisting in the WAVES during her visit to the Naval recruiting station at 196 South Main street Saturday afternoon and evening. Two applications were completed and sent to the Detroit office, Chief John Dugan, in charge, announced.

Ensign Courtney, who was sent to help the Marion recruiting station obtain more women to fill the many jobs being turned over to the WAVES, said the Navy wants 95,000 WAVES by the end of 1944, which proves what a good job the women are doing. Skilled or unskilled women will be accepted as long as they are adaptable and will be trained for technical jobs now being filled by sailors.

If a women has had two years of college and business experience, she is eligible for a commission when she enlists. If she does not have these qualifications, however, she can be recommended for officer's training after she has been in six months.

Nazi Hangman No. 1

Associated Press Features

With their armies fleeing in Russia and their cities crumbling under relentless bombings, the Nazis have turned over to Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler vast new powers to beat down rising discontent at home. Here are typical poses in his career.

FANATIC

Mouse - looking, beady - eyed Himmler, 42, studied agriculture, was too young to fight in World war I. He joined Hitler early and grew in power with the Nazis.

TROOPER

Himmler moved in with his secret police to terrorize invaded nations. In 1933, with General Daluege, he directed Austrian police in swearing fealty to Hitler.

TYRANT

Persecuting Jews, wielding the lash in concentration camps were Himmler's jobs. He formed the Storm Troops, in 1933 reviewed them with Ernst Roehm, later purged.

PRETENDER

He often pretended kindness, like patting this Bukovinian boy resettled in Germany in 1941. But no cruelty went unused to bring downtrodden peoples in line for Hitler.

Fisher To Ask Court Order Against Auditor

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21—Liquor Director Don Fisher said today he had formally requested Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert to institute mandamus proceedings in the supreme court to compel state Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson to approve a $1,000,000 voucher toward the purchase of 100,000 cases of whisky.

"As liquor director, it is my responsibility to maintain an adequate supply of liquor so far as possible," Fisher said. "The agreement by which we can obtain this volume of whisky was studied and found entirely valid by the attorney general. I propose, therefore, to proceed with the transaction."

Ferguson refused to approve the voucher yesterday on grounds the liquor still was to be bottled and that collateral advanced by Foster & Company, New York liquor dealer with whom the deal was made, was not sufficient.

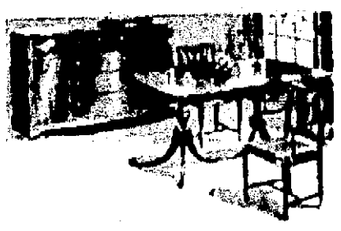
Dependable Furniture for 77 Years



What It Proves--

A furniture dealer in another city ran a rather large ad in his newspaper and got very little response from the effort. His comment was: "It goes to prove that price does not always make them buy."

The man is right. Furniture is not bought every day by the family; the purchases often "run into money," and the reputation of the store is usually of more importance to the family than the price. They know that if they get into the right store they will get the right price. A store could not get a good reputation unless its price were right. The two things go together.

Price, in itself, means nothing. It depends altogether on WHAT YOU GET for the price you pay—whether you pay much or little.

AUTOMATIC PILOT HELPS BOMB AIM

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Details of "one of America's best kept military secrets"—the use of an electronically - controlled automatic pilot—were disclosed yesterday with army approval.

The devise, said by the Army air force to have been "one of the factors responsible for the devastation" in raids over Europe and Asia, provides a stable platform for high altitude bombing "of vastly increased accuracy."

The improvement was described by the Army air force and the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company at a luncheon here. The company cooperated with the Army air force on its development after material command officials at Wright Field foresaw the need for a modified instrument capable of controlling accurately aircraft on high altitude precision bombing missions.

The improvement was accepted by the Army air force in October, 1941.

Alfred M. Wilson, vice president in charge of the company's Aeronautical division, described the autopilot as designed "to take over completely the duties of the pilot on bombing runs" and "to hold the plane on a designated course without wavering." He added that it was not designed to replace pilots, but to give them maximum protection.

He explained that super-sensitivity of the electronic mechanism returns a plane almost immediately to its course, despite cross currents, wind variations and air blasts from exploding anti-aircraft shells.

Wilson cited the case of a Flying Fortress almost cut in two by a Messerschmitt 109, its pilot's manual control cables connecting to rudder and elevators severed. The ship, he said, "was flown safely home on the autopilot, because the control surface motors of the electronic system were located far in the tail and were not damaged in the mid-air crash."

Malnutrition is believed to be the chief reason for the high death rate among children in India.

WPB URGES MORE SUB-CONTRACTING

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21—If a job for war on new equipment is being sought can be sub-contracted or done on machine tools which are already available, the War Production Board will deny applications for priorities on the new equipment, Edward J. Mulligan, manager of the WPB's Columbus district stated today. He said this action comes as a step in the WPB's campaign to spur sub-contracting by prime contractors and to conserve manpower and materials.

Explaining that since February of this year it has been recognized that the nation has adequate manufacturing facilities and capital equipment, Mr. Mulligan said the time has come to stop man-hour losses in the production of excess machine tools, both for the good of the war production effort and the post-war position of the machine tool industry.

"Our war plants," he said, "can do the maximum job only if small plants as well as large plants are going full speed in the war production program. Many of these smaller plants have equipment and tools to do the work and have the manpower available, and there is no sound reason to provide new equipment and tools for large plants while existing similar equipment and tools remain idle in small plants."

Aussie Women Set Example

WOMEN AT WAR. These girls wear uniforms of Aussie Women's Flying Club.

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer

Mrs. Roosevelt may return from Australia with reports which will shed light on our own problems here at home.

Australian women have been at war two years longer than we have. They are in the thick of the fight and they are taking a more intensive part in the war effort than we are.

Women are serving in the Australian equivalents of our WACs and WAVES, nursing at the front, making guns, planes and tanks, helping produce the country's food, even as we do here. But they are doing a lot besides that. They are managing huge sheep and cattle stations (ranches), working on those ranches as shepherds and farm hands, running street cars and taxis in town and delivering papers, bread, meat and milk. In short they are in the war effort up to their necks. And some of the ways they have met their problems can give us some interesting tips for solving our own.

How to keep the Good News Good!

THE WAR NEWS for the past few months has been mighty good for our side.

And you can help keep it good. There's a big price tag on good news, on attacks and victories; a price tag of life, sacrifice, and cold hard cash. Our job here at home is to provide the cash. Plenty of it. Now!

Good news is born of action, action consumes material, material costs money. That's the reason for the Third War Loan that's now on. This Third War Loan calls for every working man and woman to put extra money into Bonds in September.

Not just the 10% of your salary. Not just spare change. Not just left-over dollars. But extra, hard-earned, budget-saved, money. It's the way, today, to back the men who are doing the real job of sacrificing.

What Might Have Been

THE extreme difficulty of changing focus from the short-distance war in Italy to the long-distance fighting in the Pacific is presented again in the announcement from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters that the Japanese on New Guinea have been routed from their last stronghold, at Lae. The next Japanese base to fall is expected to be Rabaul, lying northeast of Lae, on New Britain island. When this has been accomplished, the Japanese drive to reach Australia finally will have been turned back. After two years of hard and desperate fighting, United States and Australian troops and airmen and the bulk of the United States navy will have won reasonable security for the continent of Australia. They will have started "on the way back," as Gen. MacArthur phrases it, but they will have started at a point so remote from the Philippines, which control the ultimate approach to Japan, itself, that no one can guess how long they may need to reach there. The greatest distances that enter into strategy in the European war are insignificant by comparison with the vast spaces in the war with Japan.

As the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor approaches, it is time again to realize how different things would be now if Gen. MacArthur had been given enough men and equipment to hold the Philippines; if the United States had not been caught napping on Dec. 7, 1941; if the American people and their government had understood the implications of their improvised foreign policy in the Orient; and if the damage of a makeshift policy had been repaired in time to keep Japan in its own territory instead of waiting to oust it from jungle strongholds in another hemisphere.

Make It an Even Billion

FOR all practical purposes, frost and the imminence of frost have brought Victory Gardening to the close of its first year of important activity.

The last bean of summer is withering on its stalk. The root crops are about as large as they ever will be. The tomatoes, as usual, aren't all going to have a chance to mature, and a good many of the little peppers have died a-borning.

But it was a great experiment for all who tried it, and perhaps the seasoned hands will forgive the newcomers for talking too much about their little triumphs and little failures. They really weren't important enough to monopolize conversation throughout the summer, but in the mass they probably affected the welfare of an even billion dollars' worth of food.

A billion dollars, though, only suggests and does not tell what the gardens meant. They taught Americans who had forgotten it that the ultimate reliance of everything on earth is the earth, itself—a rediscovery that only Victory Gardeners can understand.

The Real Italy

RUNNING like a bright thread through the grim story of the battle for Italy is the sympathy of the Italian people for the fighting men of the Allies.

Italy has ceased to be represented in World war II by a government and is now what every nation becomes in the last analysis—a population united by preponderent convictions and characteristics. The Italian people no longer can be misrepresented by errant politicians; for a little time, at least, they are their own infallible spokesmen. The deeds and words that acknowledge Allied troops as men who have come to drive out the Germans, not to conquer the Italians, today are Italy.

Eventually, there will be a new Italian government, with spokesmen who will represent the people, or misrepresent them, depending on the success of the effort which probably is now under way to reconstitute an organized Italian nation. Meanwhile, the Italian people are revealing in their own way why Benito Mussolini's abortive scheme to ally them with Germany fell through. It had no basis in popular convictions. Mussolini's regime fell, as any government must fall when it ceases to represent what the people, themselves, want from their government.

So They Say—

The task of holding the line against inflation is one that requires closest cooperation between the people and their government. Voluntary action on the part of civilians is essential if success is to be achieved.—President Roosevelt.

The automobiles of the future—unlike the dream world models which have been appearing in slick magazines—will be the product of evolution and not revolution. Thus our future cars will be improved but not fantastically different.—Delmar G. Roos, chief engineer Willys-Overland Motors.

It is abundantly clear that a system of organized international cooperation for the maintenance of peace must be based upon the willingness of the cooperating nations to use force if necessary.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

International Police Force Idea Expected To Fade; Many Complications Seen in Plan.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Trouble is rearing again on the international police force idea.

Senator Hatch, co-author the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill bill (which Vice President Wallace indorsed) as calling for an international police force acting under orders of an international body.

Powerful Foreign Relations Chairman Connally says there can be no such force, and no such surrender of sovereignty.

The man whose views count more, State Secretary Hull, has announced only that the "means" of international action to keep the peace is being discussed, (which may be significant in view of the fact that his now resigned assistant, Mr. Welles, promised an international police force.)

Let us sift the argument for facts, and analyze the trouble. Fact Number 1 is that the term "international police force" is obviously a misnomer. What everyone means is not international policemen patrolling around the world with night sticks, but an international army and navy ready to do battle. The difference between a policeman and an international gas bomber measures the extent in which the discussion has been deceptively entitled.

When you call the argument by its right name, you also can measure accurately the extent to which some sort of super world organization would control the armed might of the world and thus completely destroy all the national sovereignties of all nations.

Russia Wouldn't Accept

Offhand, I would say that even if we wanted this, Russia would never accept it, and I doubt if Britain. The idea of an international police force to run Russia must make Stalin laugh.

Incontrovertible fact No. 2 is that Hatch and others who believe in such a force, actually think they are continuing the alliance which is winning the war. The war is being won in an entirely different way. We have our army and navy, the British have theirs, Russia theirs.

We and the British have worked pretty close, but we do not even yet know the simplest facts of the Russian army strength or plans. The sovereignty of each ally has been preserved so far in the winning of this war. Of cooperation there has been plenty, but such notion has rarely been entertained as over-riding.

If Senator Hatch and the others really want to continue the war status quo in the post war world, there will be no international army and no super state. (Stalin has not even been in conference with us yet.)

Reasons for Victory

We are winning the war, from the American standpoint, because we were able to put a superior army and superior equipment into the field on time. We nearly were too late.

If Senator Hatch and the others in that school want to carry the victory over into the peace, they will primarily insist that we maintain our super or army, air force, navy, and keep our production lines ready and open, so we will never be caught unprepared in another Pearl Harbor.

Fact No. 3 is their assumption that an international army or super state would eliminate differences between nations. Well, we had relatively the existing allied armed situation or better, at the time Manchukuo was invaded by the Japs, China outrageously attacked, and Ethiopia conquered — and we never did anything about it.

We did nothing because of differences of interests among the anti-aggressor forces. Our people did not want to do anything about these things.

Any attempt to have this country go to war to protect these remote peoples was considered preposterous at the time. If there had been an international army, the same differences would have prevailed and prevented action.

Lack of Agreement

Hatch's own senate cannot get together within itself for specific international peace action, now or with the house, or either of them with the President.

If you cannot get the Democrats and Republicans, or even the Democrats within themselves, to agree on a course of peace action, how is the world super state, representing far greater differences and competitive interests existing between nations like Russia and the democracies, ever going to agree on war action?

The idea, therefore, is likely to evaporate for lack of substance.

Guaranties for Future Peace in Germany Seen as No. 1 Question in Post-War Plans.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN THE conversations now in progress with Russia the question which underlies all others is the settlement with Germany. If we can reach an agreement on this, all the other issues, not only in Europe but in East Asia and the Pacific, must and will yield to diplomacy.

An agreement by Britain and America with Russia on the future of Germany is the cardinal agreement which will exclude the possibility of another great war for a long time to come. Then and only then will there be the prospect of peace.

Failure to reach such an agreement would make the postwar era one of preparation and maneuver for another great war in our generation.

There appears to be a radical difference of opinion between the Russians and ourselves. They have sponsored the idea of a negotiated peace with a "Free German" government whereas we stand for unconditional surrender followed by the military government of Germany.

But there is good reason to think that these are two partial, incomplete views of the same problem, arising out of the fact that Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt have been until recently so pre-occupied with the conduct of the war that none has been able to explore thoroughly, much less all three of them together, the real problems of a settlement.

Improvised Plan

So while they have organized the war with great professional thoroughness, they have thus far improvised on their state moments on the longer-ranged political issues.

It is, however, clear that with the military situation in hand, the time has come for serious attention to the diplomatic.

It can be shown, I think, that both the Free Germany proposal from Moscow and the unconditional surrender formula from Casablanca beg the question.

We may ask the Russians what guarantee they intend to take that a "Free German" government will not be a democratic facade behind which the military caste, the Nazi party, the Pan-Germans, the secret police, conspire, as they did during the Weimar Republic, for the revival of German military power 15 or 20 years hence.

The Russians, on the other hand, may ask us how we propose to end the military government we mean to set up, and how we propose to find a German government which we can rely upon when our troops are withdrawn.

A thorough search for an answer to these two difficult questions must bring us to a common ground. The Russians are bound to seek military guaranties which make it certain that a democratic German government cannot be undermined by an underground militarist conspiracy and propaganda.

We, on the other hand, are bound to seek the constituent elements of a free and reliable Germany within the framework of our military guaranties. We do not wish to be bothered forever with the government of Germany, and we could not be even if we now thought so.

Matter of Guaranties

The two formulas are, therefore, complementary. The common ground is to promote a free Germany within the framework of indisputably adequate military guaranties.

What are adequate guaranties? In the last analysis they are the firmly agreed conviction in Russia, Britain and America that they will unite in enforcing a treaty of peace which forbids the reconstruction of German militarism.

Upon that foundation we can erect a larger association for the settlement of secondary disputes, for the development of international law and the promotion of commerce and welfare.

If we do not unite with the Russians on the German question, then Germany is bound to return to militarism. For our failure to agree will mean one terrible and momentous thing—that we shall bid against each other in the postwar era for the military support of Germany.

That would be the absolutely certain prelude to a third world war, and the only possible gainers would be those Germans who will dream of revenge.

"PROOF OF THE PUDDING"

U. S., Japan Pledge Philippine Independence

By Jane Eads for Associated Press.

TWO plums, one poisoned, are offered to the people of the Philippines.

Both are ripe promises of their long-yearned-for independence.

Almost any moment, the Japanese, who have occupied the islands since early 1942, probably will announce that the right to self-rule which they promised Filipinos has become a fact.

President Roosevelt has promised the Philippines total independence as soon as they are freed from the Japanese.

Filipino leaders, representatives of the government-in-exile with headquarters in Washington, are skeptical of any Japanese promise. They declare the new constitution submitted to a meeting of the kalibapi (Japanese puppet organization in the Philippines) on Sept. 5 and 6 is "phoney."

The wording of the constitution was not made public, but according to the Japanese-controlled radio broadcasting from the islands it was "unanimously accepted."

To every Philippine peasant, the word "independence" is magic. The Japanese know this, and while they started off their regime in the islands with oppression, they are reported to have softened their tactics simultaneously with the promise of independence.

Leaders in Washington say the reason the Filipinos fought the Japanese invaders so bitterly in the first place was because of the United States pledge under the Tydings-McDuffie Philippine independence act to give them complete independence on July 4, 1946.

IN a broadcast to the Philippines last month, on the 45th anniversary of American occupation of Manila, President Roosevelt said:

"I give the Filipino people my word that the republic of the Philippines will be established the moment the power of our Japanese enemies are destroyed . . . the time will come quickly when that goes into effect."

Manuel L. Quezon, carrying on his functions as president of the Philippines while regaining his strength at Saranac Lake, N. Y., after a long illness, says Japanese promises mean "less than nothing."

"It would merely mean," he says, "that the Philippines would be another Manchukuo, a government without rights, without powers, without authority, a government charged only with the duty to obey the dictates of the Japanese rulers."

Leaders of the government-in-exile say Filipinos have confidence in the United States—confidence strengthened by President Roosevelt's reassurances and news of the war's progress, which reaches them on a daily broadcast on the Manila beam from San Francisco.

> Confident assumptions of military victory over Japan as soon as full force can be brought to bear do not take into account the efforts which the Japanese are making to consolidate their political advantage in places like Burma and the Philippines. This account by a Washington correspondent for Associated Press sketches recent highlights of Japanese political activity.

The leaders are aware, however, of serious aspects of a Japanese proclamation of Filipino "independence."

They point out that the Japanese then would couple the granting of "independence" for the Philippines with recognition of Burmese "independence" as propanganda throughout Asia.

They also point out that when the Japanese recognized the so-called independence of Burma, they forced the puppet government in Burma to declare war on the United States.

They say the Japanese will try the same thing in the Philippines . . . and, "if they can get one company of 100 men to follow this line, the propaganda, in terms of psychological warfare, will be tremendous."

PRESIDENT QUEZON assures his countrymen that the Philippines are not being neglected. "The United States President, the congress, the American people," he says, "are doing and will do everything in their power to redeem you as soon as possible from the heel of the invader."

The government-in-exile has set up a war cabinet in Washington. Its members consist of Quezon, Vice President Sergio Osmena, Maj. Gen. Basilio J. Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine army and secretary of national defense, Jaime Hernandez, auditor general; Col. Andres Soriano, secretary of finance; J. M. Elizalde, resident commissioner of the Philippines, and the secretary of the president and of the cabinet, Dr. Arturo B. Rotor.

Under the Philippine constitution, President Quezon is due to retire at the end of December of this year, to be succeeded automatically by Vice President Osmena. Whether this change in government will take place in view of the war emergency, with the government in exile, has not been officially announced.

The orginal constitution drawn up in 1935 provided a six-year presidential term with no re-election. Mr. Quezon was elected. A later amendment provided for a four-year term with no man allowed to be president for more than eight years. Mr. Quezon was reelected in 1941 on the promise that he would serve for only two more years, after which Vice President Osmena was to become president.

THE Philippines were ceded to the United States by Spain in the Treaty of Paris, Dec. 10, 1898, after the battle of Manila bay, along with Guam and Puerto Rico. The United States agreed to pay $20,000,000 for the archipelago, and the acquisition started a long controversy as to whether the Philippines were worth keeping and worth defending, a controversy which ended with Pearl Harbor.

President Roosevelt said in his radio address to the Philippines: "The story of the fighting on Bataan and Corregidor—and indeed everywhere in the Philippines—will be remembered as long as men continue to respect bravery and devotion and determination.

"When the Filipino people resisted the Japanese invaders with their very lives, they gave final proof that here was a nation fit to be respected as the equal to any on earth, not in size or wealth, but in the stout heart and national dignity which are the true measures of a people."

About 75,000 Filipinos in the United States and Hawaii are working in essential war industries and in agriculture.

Douglas MacArthur

His Friends Reported Active in Defending Him from Snubs Allegedly Started in Capital.

By DAMON RUNYON

IT IS a tactical error, politically, for Washington to permit the impression to spread that it is giving Gen. Douglas MacArthur the back of its hand.

He is the one man I think has a chance to upset the fourth term bayride, and if I were running the Roosevelt show, he is the man I would aim to work with attention to every possible advantage I may spy opening for a symphony play with the letters.

Instead of ignoring him, which MacArthur's friends say has been done in the Roosevelt-Churchill plans for beating Japan, or at least in the plan, I would use him. I would keep greater responsibilities upon him, so that in the event the war with Japan is still going on when convention time rolls around, he could not possibly abandon those responsibilities for politics without injuring himself in the public.

I do not say that MacArthur is being ignored, in fact I merely repeat what is being said by his friends, specifically those who would like to see him nominated by the Republicans for president. It may well be that full cognizance of MacArthur was taken in the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences and that he is included in all the plans in connection with the Japanese situation, but if that is true I would immediately make it clear to the public as a matter of political strategy.

I MEAN if I were running the Roosevelt show I would state at once what is contemplated for MacArthur, or if nothing is contemplated beyond the present situation I would explain why. Looking at the thing from a practical political standpoint, our supreme commander in the Southwest Pacific is growing too big in military stature through his successes to risk letting him expand politically on propaganda that the administration is ignoring him because it fears him as a potential political opponent.

I doubt that the fear exists. If it does exist it is not the first time a successful military man has thrown a scare into an administration. Lincoln, anxious for a second term, was afraid of Grant who was being approached by both Republicans and Democrats in '64. Lincoln finally sent a friend of Grant to feel him out and when Grant denied all political ambitions, the relieved Lincoln made him lieutenant general and commander of all the armies.

Wilson would not send the glamorous Teddy Roosevelt to France at the head of a division as Teddy greatly desired, because Wilson was afraid of the political consequences. Teddy had twice been president and would surely have become a threat to Wilson in the limelight of military activity. Wilson sent Teddy's pal, Leonard Wood, as a sort of alibi for snubbing Teddy.

MACARTHUR has glamor, all right. He has had enormous publicity, all of it favorable, and has struck the fancy of the people. Few know whether he is a Democrat or a Republican. Few know his opinion on any subject, other than war. Correspondents returning from Australia say he is seldom seen in public there and is well nigh a mythical figure to the Australians and to many of his own troops.

But he is the beau ideal of the American people just the same. He has disclaimed political ambition but has not repudiated the boomers in his behalf. They are most active in promoting the rumor that he is being ignored by Washington, that he is being denied supplies in sufficient quantities, that he has had to lift himself up by his own bootstraps in most of his operations, and that now that he has handcuffed the Japs in the Southwest Pacific and saved Australia, he is going to be left on guard duty there while the big shove against Japan proceeds from India.

I think all this a little far-fetched. Still, if I were running that fourth term show I would do something about MacArthur before the sympathy is parlayed into votes.

The People Speak

By Truman Twill

ONLY 5 per cent of the American public objects to the almost total absence of stockings on the legs of the nation's women and girls. They are losing money.

The other 95 per cent are enthusiastic about the wartime custom of going without stockings. They are in the business of making various leg camouflage preparations—and if they never see another stocking it will be too soon. They are working now on something that can be rubbed on the legs to keep them warm when the temperature drops.

If the American people have their way something may be done soon to eliminate socks for men. Four women out of five are in favor of this. They give as their reason that they are tired of darning socks for their husbands and sons, or that they do not relish the prospect. However, five men out of six take a substantially different point of view. Instead of less socks, they want more socks. A typical sock wearer, 39 years old, a pre-Pearl Harbor father, member of the social security system and essentially employed in a widget factory makes snoodles for whingles says: "In wartime it is more necessary than ever that I have feet on the tops of my socks to relieve nervous tension on my war-vital job. I would like to give this message to the American people—a sock on the foot is worth two on the nose."

What America wants now in the way of socks is something to give the appearance of a stocking without being a stocking—a desire shared by both men and women—is a cheap, practical preparation that can be applied like quick-drying enamel that will dry with a glossy sheen. "I like my girl's legs to look slick," is Harry Risl's way of putting it. Harry is 23 and classified 4-F as the result of being dropped on his head when young.

A separate poll conducted among manufacturers of leg camouflage indicates that if this is what America wants it is what America will get. Manufacturers have plans for a foolproof decalcomania that will make it possible for a girl who never owned a pair of stockings in her life to transfer a startlingly lifelike imitation of a runner on her painted leg. Further post-war plans call for leg camouflage that will wrinkle and sag like real stockings.

"Sometimes I think it might just be simpler to go the whole hog and let the women wear stockings," admitted one manufacturer. "But naturally we do not want to interfere with free enterprise in any way, shape, or form, especially shape or form."

NOT ALL DISSATISFIED

The announcement that beginning Oct. 1 Wellesley College, through whose grounds many feet have trod lightly for 73 years, will be used by 200 men from the Navy Supply Corps School at Harvard, may startle some of the older alumnae. But it is likely to bring cheers—the easiest problem being what it is—from the younger graduates.—New York Sun.

Miss Sorreles And R. E. McNeil Wed at Green Camp

MRS. RUSSELL E. McNEIL

The Green Camp Baptist church was the scene Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock of the wedding of Miss Arline Mae Sorreles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sorreles of Green Camp, and Russell Everett McNeil, son of Herbert McNeil of the Green Camp-Prospect road. The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. Charles W. Harmon, pastor of the church.

The church altar was attractively decorated with palms, two seven-branch candelabra, and a large basket of white gladiolus.

Miss Sorreles, escorted by her father, wore a white satin gown with fitted torso and long sleeves. The square yoke and the bottom of the full skirt, cut with a train, was made of Chantilly lace. An orange blossom coronet held her finger tip veil. She carried a white Bible holding a gardenia corsage and showering white satin streamers. For "something old" the bride carried an heirloom handkerchief and wore a six-pearl ring that had been the engagement ring of her paternal grandmother. She also wore a three-strand pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom.

The traditional wedding march by Mendelssohn was played as a processional and the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" by Wagner was played as a recessional.

The couple received the congratulations of their friends in the church vestibule following the ceremony.

Mrs. McNeil gave her attendants, the pianist, soloist and candlelighter, lapel pins. Mr. McNeil gave his attendant and the ushers billfolds.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. The dining room table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with bride and bride-groom. Widely Known Movie-Making Talent with Troupe in Marion

Names of widely-known motion picture figures echo in the roll call of the Twentieth Century-Fox location company in Marion to film scenes for "Home in Indiana," a $2,000,000 technicolor production based on George Agnew Chamberlain's novel, "The Phantom Filly."

Hal Roach Jr., son of the world famous Hollywood producer, is serving as second assistant director. His father, owner of the Hal Roach Studios, has turned over his studios to the Army and himself is serving as a major in the Army air corps. Until recently Roach Sr. was stationed at Wright Field, Dayton, but recently was transferred to an Orlando, Fla., base.

Hal Jr. has directed the production of six Army training films, a series with Will Roger's son, Jimmy, and only recently completed work on "Tampico," a film which has not yet been released. He also had an active part in filming various "Our Gang Comedies" and "Laurel and Hardy" pictures.

A similar position is held by Eric Von Stroheim, son of the famed Hollywood actor who played the part of "Marshall Rommel" in "Five Graves to Cairo." Eric Jr. is an assistant to director James Tinling, who heads the second camera unit.

A 10-Year Veteran

Henry Weinberger, who is first assistant director to Henry Hathaway in the filming of "Home in Indiana," after 10 years of work in the movie industry isn't sure how he originally broke into the business. "It must have been a mistake," he said in answer to a reporter's question.

At any rate, Henry is in the film business and apparently is doing right well for himself. Starting in 1933 as a third assistant director, he climbed in five years to the position of first assistant director. His first picture was "Dante's Inferno." Succeeding ones were: "Old Chicago," "Alexander's Rag Time Band," "Stanley Livingstone," "Jesse James." As a first assistant director he has worked on "Remember the Day," "Black Swan," "Heaven Can Wait," "Guadacanal Dairy" and "My Gal Sal."

Since he was elevated to his present position he has worked with Directors Irving Cummings, Henry King, Rouben Mamoulian and Ernst Lubitsch. "Home in Indiana" is his first picture with Director Henry Hathaway.

Fightin' Actor

Noble "Kid" Chissell, who plays the part of Flee Flit Dryer, a race driver, in "Home in Indiana," fought throughout this part of the country as a professional boxer several years ago.

When "Kid" packed up in preparation for the trip from Hollywood to Fremont, his wife, who on the screen is known as Mary Arden, asked him to look up some of her relatives who were believed to be living in Fremont. Mrs. Chissell's maiden name was Cleveland. Upon his arrival in Fremont Kid scanned the phone books without success.

However, shortly after the company's arrival a Fremont youth was picked as Lon McAllister's standin. It turned out that the boy's name was Cleveland—Richard Cleveland. Rich and the Kid put their heads together and found out that Rich and the Kid's wife were third cousins.

His professional ring background enabled Chissell to win Merchant Marine and Navy boxing titles. In 1933, when he was discharged from the Navy, Kid took up free lance work in the movies. He has worked in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," "Ex-Champ," "Leather Pusher," "Men of Courage" and "Brigham Young."

Wrong Horse Wins

The movie makers run into all sorts of difficulties—especially in making an action-packed film like "Home in Indiana." Typical of the difficulties encountered is one which occurred Sunday as scenes of the finish of the race which is to be won by Sparke Thorton (Lon McCallister). Sparke's leading opposition, Jed Bruce (Ward Bond), finished the race first although the juvenile star was scheduled to hit the wire first. Because of the unexpected finish it was necessary to re-shoot the scene.

Group Visits Bucyrus

Guests included Director Henry Hathaway, Cameraman Eddie Cronjager and his brother, Henry, Anthony Eugrin, Chester Gore, Richard Mueller, James Tinling, Joe Neville, Casey Shawhan, Frank Foster and Ray Hennesy.

Movie Slanguage

The motion picture industry, like almost every big business, has its own language.

In watching scenes made for the picture which glorifies the trotting horse, fairground spectators have been completely "heard from." "Hit it with a lead." "Give me a gobo." "Hit it with a baby" and scores of other puzzled requests mean nothing to the average layman.

The term, "hit it with a lead," in motion picture slang is an order from the director, cameraman or someone else in an authoritative position to one of the grippers (reflector operators) to turn a reflector upon a specified person or object.

"Give me a gobo" is the head electrician's request of an assistant for a screen or shade. "Hit it with a baby" means to turn an arc light upon a specified person or object. "Put a wind bag on it" is the soundman's order to an assistant to place a cloth bag around the "mike".

Other terms are "blimp" for a sound-proof box which is placed around the camera, "barney" for a sound-proof bag, wrapped around the camera, "broad" for a large arc light, "barn doors" for large tin reflectors and "butterflies" for small light-deflecting screens.

COUNCIL

men pointed out, it could be passed by a majority vote, and a majority now favors the change. However, this procedure would require several weeks' time. There was no indication last night whether a further effort would be made by those favoring the change to bring the matter before council again.

Electric Action Delayed

When the electric rate ordinance came before council, and a vote was taken to suspend council rules and give the ordinance its third and final reading last night, two voted "No." They were Councilmen Simmons and Barnhart. Council President R. H. Stief pointed out that a three-fourths majority (seven votes) is required to suspend the council rules calling for readings of ordinances at three separate meetings and announced the ordinance would have to wait until next Monday night for a third reading and final vote. Councilman Robinson had not arrived in time to vote on this question, and consequently there were only six favorable votes.

Councilman Barnhard said after the meeting he thought the electric rate action was being taken too quickly, and said he had other objections which he would mention next Monday night. Councilman Simmons said he voted no because he felt a 10-year contract, in view of the national emergency and the uncertainty of economic conditions in the coming 10 years, was too long. He said he would favor a five-year contract.

Last night's meeting was a special session arranged at the last meeting and had been intended to bring final action on both the electric rate and time change questions. The next regular meeting of council will be next Monday night, at which the electric rate ordinance automatically will be up for final action, since it was given its second reading last night.

Scioto Ordnance Plant Employe Joins WAVES

Mrs. Mary Y. Haynes of Kenton was sworn into the Women's Reserve of the U. S. Navy at Detroit on Sept. 7. Mrs. Haynes, employed by the U. S. Rubber Co., at the Scioto Ordnance Plant, enlisted in the WAVES through the Marion Navy recruiting sub-station at 196 South Main street.

She was graduated from Kenton High school in 1936. She will leave soon for Hunter college in New York City for "boot" training.

Two of her brothers are in the Army. Donald Young is stationed at Ocean Point, N. Y., and Dave Young is now overseas.

HOUSE ACTION DUE ON POST-WAR PLAN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The house reached for its legislative pen today to sign a history-shaping document which would place congress on record in favor of postwar collaboration with other nations in maintaining a "just and lasting peace."

The action comes in a roll call vote of a tersely worded resolution designed to bury any belief that congressional peacetime philosophy will be dictated by a doctrine of isolationism.

There appeared little doubt as to the outcome. From both Republicans and Democrats came potent support for the resolution, drafted by Rep. Fulbright (D-Ark.)

Leaders of both parties expressed confidence it would be adopted by substantially more than the required two thirds vote.

A comparative handful of lawmakers battled bitterly against it. They declared its adoption would sign away American sovereign and constitutional rights, that its acceptance would involve the United States in the conflicts, the responsibilities and the wars of other continents.

Against that argument was leveled the repeated contention of the resolution's backers that congress had dealt this nation out of postwar collaboration after World war No. 1 and that the stakes of permanent peace were worth the gamble of the game.

Army Officer's Wife Victim of Knife Slayer

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Sept. 21 — Plans were buried today for the knife-slaying slayer of Mrs. Mary Gallian, 18-year-old bride of an army officer.

Mrs. Gallian's body was found in the basement of her mother-in-law's home, a pink undergarment knotted around her neck and her throat slashed. A blood-stained butcher knife was found near the body.

Police said they believed that Mrs. Gallian, surprised while washing clothes in a basement laundry tub, was strangled and then her throat was cut.

Deputy Sheriff Regains Custody of Son, 11

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21 — Deputy Sheriff Harry E. Bradley of Newark today regained custody of his 11year-old son, Harry D., from the boy's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, of Columbus, through a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Clayton W. Rose.

Bradley's attorney told the court the boy had come to visit his grandparents last Saturday and they refused to permit him to return home with his father. Testimony disclosed the boy's mother died when he was four years of age and that he had spent much of his time with his grandparents.

Leaders are asking all block chairmen, payroll savings representatives and township leaders to make a complete report of solicitations in their respective territories not later than Wednesday. At that time, the list of prospects will be scanned for possible call-backs, which will be handled through volunteer workers of the women's division headed by Miss Maud Gorham.

New emphasis was placed today on the retail phase of the drive, which has been proceeding quietly but effectively. All retailers have accepted quotas equivalent to $200 for each member of their organizations. These quotas are to be sold to customers in the stores, not purchased by the workers themselves. In connection with this part of the drive, the state organization today announced it will distribute Third War Loan cards to each retail business employe who sells $200 or more in war bonds this month.

New Invasion Due: Churchill

Germans in France and the low countries"—that he has never regarded it as such.

"On the contrary," he said in a lengthy statement on the tide of the war, "the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended to be an essential preliminary to the main attack upon Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite states."

He disclosed, however, that he and President Roosevelt set Italy's elimination from the war as their principal objective when they met in Washington last May and added that no one "would have expected it to have been so rapidly achieved."

Turning to the air war, the prime minister announced that the weight of bombs dropped on Germany in the past year was three times of the preceding 12 months and that Britain's aircraft supply now exceeds that of Germany by more than four to one.

Saying that the almost total destruction of German war centers was continuing on a great scale, Churchill disclosed that the percentage of plane losses to the RAF in the first eight months of 1943 was less than the same period last year and that the morale of the crews was consequently higher.

Sub Sinkings Decline

He announced also that during the four months ending Sept. 18 not a single merchant vessel was lost by enemy action in the North Atlantic and that enemy U-boats had not sunk one allied ship anywhere in the world during the first two weeks of September.

Churchill added, however, that German U-boats had become active again and that one convoy was being attacked at the present time.

In a further disclosure of Russia's participation in the Italian surrender, the prime minister said the Soviet government studied the armistice terms and authorized Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to sign them in its name.

He also revealed that arrangements had been made to land an American armored division in Rome at the same time as the main invasion of Italy but that it was not possible because the Germans held the air fields.

The house greeted the sturdy figure of the smiling prime minister with prolonged cheers but among his listeners were many who were impatient with the progress of the Mediterranean campaign and the delay in opening a western second front for which Russia has been making repeated demands.

Dignitaries Attend

The galleries were crowded with dignitaries of the United Nations to hear the prime minister give an accounting of his conduct of the war and of the most exhaustive strategy conferences of his career at Washington and Quebec.

The prime minister entered the house while Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was telling members that Churchill's speech would be an extra long one.

After paying tribute to Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, who died today, Churchill began his war review.

He declared it was not possible for the Italians to hand over Mussolini before the landing "as that would have disclosed our intentions to the enemy and the Italians were in the position of still having to appear as allies of Germany."

The Badoglio government, he added, took careful measures to hold Mussolini, but did not provide against "a heavy parachute descent at that particular point"—Gran Sasso, where the Germans seized him.

"They (the Italians) had one card up their sleeves—Carbinieri guards had orders to shoot Mussolini if any attempt was made to rescue him but they failed in their duty," Churchill said.

The Soviet government studied the Italian armistice terms and authorized General Eisenhower to sign them in its name, he disclosed.

The suggestion that 40 days were lost and blood needlessly shed, Churchill said, "is as ill founded in fact as it is wounding to those bereaved. The timing of our main attack on Italy was fixed without the slightest reference to the attitude of the Italian government."

"The date on which the invasion was planned was the 15th which was, however, brought forward to the ninth," he said. The whole of this operation was planned as a result of decisions taken before the fall of Mussolini and what had taken place in any case would have happened in Italy at the earliest possible moment. The Italian surrender was a windfall, but it had nothing to do with the date for harvesting the orchard."

Only Limiting Factor

The preparation of landing craft was the only limiting factor he said and not one moment was lost in that.

He said he or Eden "possibly" would make a further statement on the Badoglio government soon.

He termed Italian action at present "natural and human" and said "may it prove to be the first of a series of acts of self-redemption." "We don't want war with races as such," Churchill said. "We war against tyranny and we seek to preserve ourselves against destruction. These are the two targets to aim at—Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism. Let us aim every gun and set every man who will march against them."

Declaring he knew in advance of the Russian counterstroke at Stalingrad, Churchill said Stalin at Moscow "was able to speak to me with confidence of his ability to withstand the German attack."

"For a whole year," he continued, "we and our great allies have had almost unbroken successes by land, by sea and by air."

"Complete strategic air domination of Germany by Anglo-American airforces is not necessarily beyond our reach even in 1944 with consequences, if it were attained, which cannot be measured but most certainly would be profound."

Churchill announced that during the four months ending Sept. 18 no merchant vessel had been sunk by enemy action in the north Atlantic.

Two Weeks Without Loss

He said during the first fortnight in September no allied ships had been sunk by U-boat action in any part of the world. This was altogether unprecedented in the whole history of U-boat warfare in this or the last war, he said.

Saying that we must not suppose because of air and sea successes that "the war is coming to an end," Churchill said on the contrary we must expect "frenzied efforts to retaliate."

He disclosed the Germans are using a new type of aerial bomb against shipping in close quarters. It is a rocket assisted by a glider which is released from considerable height and apparently guided to the target by a parent aircraft.

"It might be," he added, "that the Germans are developing their weapons on novel lines."

He said the credit balance of new shipbuilding over losses of all kinds since the beginning of the war exceeded 6,000,000 tons and "should present favorable conditions hold, we shall soon have replaced all losses suffered by the United Nations since the beginning of the war."

The United Nations, he said, can now be defeated by the submarine, only through "gross neglect of duty in the shipyards and on the seas and inexcusable falling off so technical ability on both sides of the Atlantic."

"We have substantial margins between us and what is called the danger level (of supplies) on which we have never retrenched even at the worst times."

Turning to the Pacific war to which the Quebec conference was very largely devoted, Churchill cited "a new feature in the resistance of Japan," in evacuating the Aleutians instead of fighting to the last man.

He said Lord Louis Mountbatten soon would arrive in India with a staff of officers to set up headquarters in New Delhi, which will conform with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's British-American model in the Mediterranean theater.

After discussing the Italian situation, Churchill broke off his speech for a luncheon recess.

This action was unusual in the procedure of the house, but Eden said in proposing it before Churchill began to speak that precedent for it had been established by the prime minister himself in delivering a budget message as chancellor of the exchequer in 1928. The session of the house was prolonged an extra hour today in order to allow the prime minister to give his lengthy war review.

Churchill had been speaking roughly an hour and a quarter when he interrupted his address.

Cites Italian-Nazi Fights

Resuming after lunch, Churchill declared that fighting between Germans and Italians has taken place "at many points" and there is no doubt where the sympathy, hopes and efforts of the Italians now lie.

Disclosing American forces have landed on Sardinia, he said these forces are assisting four Italian divisions who have driven the Germans out of Sardinia.

"We had made great and elaborate plans for the invasion of Corsica and Sardinia," Churchill added amid laughter, "but we have got them in the pick up."

Referring to the Salerno battle, Churchill said "German hopes of driving us into the sea with a bloody mopup on the beaches must at times have risen high."

"We must consider this episode, the landing on the beaches at Salerno, as an important and pregnant victory, one deserving a definite place in the records of the British and United States armies."

Turning to the French, Churchill disclosed the battleship Richelieu soon would take its place in the French fleet and said a French army of 300,000 to 400,000 is being steadily organized.

Russia, he said, had agreed that the French national committee should be represented on the commission set up in the Mediterranean.

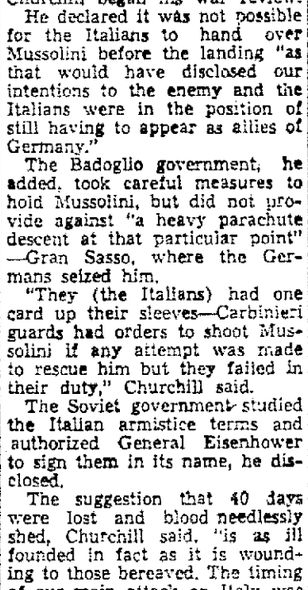
"We regard the restoration of France as one of the great powers of Europe as a sacred duty from which Great Britain will never turn."

Stating there were nearly 75,000 British prisoners and 25,000 Greek and Yugoslav prisoners in Italian hands before the armistice Churchill said the Italians had given orders for the release of all under their control.

Declaring United States naval forces already dominant in the Pacific, Churchill said the surrender of the Italian fleet had decisively altered the Mediterranean naval balance. Concluding, he declared:

"In America I found the feeling everywhere that the war was being well managed. It is my hope that this conviction is generally shared at home."

He added amid laughter, "and that the house of commons will feel no need to reproach itself for the unwavering confidence it has given to his majesty's servants in discharging the exceptional duties which have been laid upon them."



DEATH BRINGS AN END to 31 years of confinement for the man who attempted to assassinate a president of the United States. He is John F. Schrank, above, who has succumbed at the age of 67 in the Wisconsin penitentiary hospital for the criminally insane at Waupun. Schrak fired a pistol shot into the chest of President Theodore Roosevelt as "T. R." was on his way to a Milwaukee political rally on Oct. 4, 1912. The president, slightly wounded, made his speech as scheduled with open vest showing his blood-stained shirt.

BARUCH TO TESTIFY ON FATHER DRAFT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—With support for the measure apparently ebbing, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) counted heavily today on Bernard M. Baruch to dent the solid military front against his proposal to defer the father draft.

Wheeler told reporters in advance of the scheduled resumption of hearings on the legislation he expected Baruch to criticize the reported "hoarding" of workers by war industries. The Montanan contends this has done more to put family heads in line for induction next month than any other one factor.

Baruch made such a criticism in his recent report to War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes. But at the same time he said it would be unwise to exempt fathers in unessential occupations if it meant taking skilled workers from war industries.

The senate military committee voted yesterday to call Baruch as a witness on Wheeler's demand, but the time of his appearance remained in doubt. The Montana senator said he would not ask for debate on his bill until Baruch had been heard, probably tomorrow.

While Wheeler was inclined to discount its effect, the opposition voiced against his bill yesterday by Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the fleet, apparently damaged its chances of passage.

Senator Austin (R-Vt) said he thought the testimony of the two military chiefs "shows the fathers draft measure ought not to pass."

Sir Kingsley Wood, British Exchequer, Dies

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 21—Sir Kingsley Wood, 62, chancellor of the exchequer, died today.

The man who was credited largely with keeping Great Britain's wartime finance on an even keel died on the eve of the anticipated announcement of his pay-as-you-go plan for workers' income tax.

Sir Kingsley has served as chancellor of the exchequer under Prime Minister Churchill since May 12, 1940, when he received the post in a cabinet shake-up. He previously had served as lord privy seal and air minister.

Rationing Board Asks Report on Lewis Trip

By The Associated Press

ALEXANDRIA, VA., Sept. 21—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has been requested by the Alexandria war price and rationing board to furnish "a full and complete itinerary of the trip" the labor chieftain made Aug. 11 to Springfield, Ill.

The Richmond district office of price administration instructed the Alexandria board to investigate reports that Lewis violated OPA regulations by driving to the Illinois city.

Seven Prospect Autos Ransacked by Thieves

Seven autos belonging to Prospect residents were ransacked Sunday night and gasoline coupons were taken, Marshal E. Fetter of Prospect reported today.

Only gasoline coupons were taken from all the cars but two, Marshal Fetter said. Dr. T. Boxwell found the title to his auto missing besides the coupons, and Evan Kline's title and food ration books were taken. All the cars had been left unlocked with the exception of Dr. Boxwell's and Dr. R. H. Gray's. Their cars had been entered by breaking the door glass.

Six cars were ransacked in Prospect and one belonging to Joe B. Almendinger four and a half mile east of Prospect on Route 47. Owners not mentioned above are Don Almendinger, Fred Brown, and Charles C. Collins.

He was taken to City hospital and released last night. While playing in the upstairs apartment occupied by his parents, he pushed a screen from a window facing an alley and fell. Crawford County Corn Queen Named

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, O., Sept. 21—Miss Joan Brett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Brett of Chatfield, was selected Corn Queen last night to preside over the festivities of Crawford county's fifth annual corn show, which will start Thursday afternoon. Miss Brett, who is a junior in high school, is the second girl in her family to wear the crown. Her sister, Eurena, reigned during the 1940 corn show. Another sister, Idonna, was a candidate for the honor last year.

Also starting Monday was construction of the transportation display being set up by men of Camp Millard on Washington square.

Judging of corn Thursday afternoon will launch the three-day event and on Thursday night the coronation will precede a "bond auction" arranged in connection with the current war bond drive.

A colt show and horse show are the Friday highlights and the pie judging is scheduled for Saturday afternoon. Bond auctions also will be held Saturday night, at which time trophies, cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded to winners of the various events.

JAPS LOSE HEAVILY AT LAE, SALAMAUA

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 21, Japan paid a high price in men and equipment while losing Lae and Salamaua on New Guinea.

Now that these air bases are firmly in General MacArthur's hands, enemy garrisons in the area are beginning to undergo attacks by fighter-escorted bombers and to see more strafing Allied fighters than they have experienced before.

Just how many of a Japanese army once estimated at 20,000 men were slain as Salamaua fell Sept. 12 and Lae Sept. 16 remains to be disclosed in official reports. But a spokesman for General MacArthur said today the enemy, caught in a jungle encirclement movement, lost heavily.

He said evidence has been found that the Japanese lost an entire regiment, ordinarily averaging 2,200 men, in killed and hospitalized during the outpost battles at Wau, Mubo and Komiatum leading up to the larger scale fighting at Salamaua and Lae.

Japanese soldiers who fled north from Lae now are being added to the mounting list of enemy dead.

Today's communique told of effective air raids on enemy air installations at Finschhafen, 60 miles up the Huon peninsula from Lae.

Yanks and Tigers Chief Attraction

By The Associated Press

The major leagues will swing into their last intersectional round robin of the season tomorrow with instead of everybody outing the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers as appeared likely when the schedule was drawn, attention will be centered on the New York Yankees' games with the Detroit Tigers.

In the last couple of years a September series between the Cards and Dodgers always has meant thunder and lightning and a pennant waving in the breeze.

But this is all changed now. The three games with the Dodgers this week only mean to the Cardinals a chance to rub salt on old wounds. They could do this effectively by bumping out of second place, if they haven't let down as the result of clinching the National league pennant Saturday, and if the Cincinnati Reds cut loose against the New York Giants.

However, the controversy over second place in the senior circuit will be in eclipse until the New York Yankees complete the business of winning the American league flag.

They had a chance to do it at Washington last week-end, but were set down surprisingly in three consecutive games as the Senators reinforced their hold on the runner-up spot with a nine-game winning streak.

As a result the Yankees still need a combination of five victories of their own or defeats for Washington to eliminate the Senators.

While the Yankees are taking on Detroit for four games in New York, the Senators will be host to the St. Louis Browns for three night tussles.

The Cleveland Indians, who also still have a mathematical chance, come into Yankee stadium Sunday after four games at Boston and then move on to Washington in the middle of next week.

The race should be over by then, but if it is not the Indians and Senators may dispose of each other.

MUSIAL AND APPLING STILL LEAD BATTERS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Both Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox tightened their grips on the batting leaderships of their leagues during the past week.

Musial hiked his aggregate three points and now leads second-place Billy Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers by 22 points, compared to the 19 points of seven days ago. Musial now is hitting at a .356 pace while Herman has the identical figures—.334 of a week ago.

Appling also climbed three points, from .321 to .324, and Dick Wakefield, young Detroit outfielder, skidded from .315 to .313, giving the veteran shortstop an 1-point margin.

Junior Stephens of the St. Louis Browns, erstwhile American league leader who dropped from the big ten in his circuit last week, returned this time with an average of .285, good enough to give him a tie for ninth with Pete Fox of Boston. Stephens ousted Frankie Higgins of Detroit.

In the National circuit, Frankie Gustine of the Pittsburgh Pirates edged into the select group, displacing Stan Hack of the Chicago Cubs. Gustine has a .297 ticket.

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER FOR NORTHWESTERN

By The Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 21 — Northwestern, which failed to win a Western conference football game last fall, figures strongly in the championship race this season with 16 lettermen, 13 of whom are held over as V-12 students.

Augmenting this group are a dozen service transfers, several from Minnesota and Nebraska. The prize catches are Herman Frickey and Herb Hein, both Gopher regulars last fall, who will start in Northwestern's opener against Indiana Saturday at right halfback and left end, respectively.

The remainder of these students gives Northwestern a reserve flexibility it seldom has enjoyed in the past. Outstanding are five Nebraska linemen—guard Al Grubaugh, ends Vic Clark and Ed Nyden, tackle Dwyne Domier and center Joe Partington. Partington, a 1942 regular for the huskers is at present in a struggle for the starting pivot assignment with Len Golan and Hal Hudson, Northwestern lettermen. Another Nebraska prize is Hank Reichel, who will be one of Frickey's understudies at right half.

Coach Lynn Waldorf's holdover material to select his first string includes three starters from last year. They are triple-threat Otto Graham at left half, Alex Kapter at left guard and Ray Vincent at right tackle. And Lynne McNutt, quarterback; John Gent, right guard; Bill Ivy, left tackles and Bob Wallis, rightend. All played enough for Northwestern in 1942 to be classed as regulars.

Waldorf has at least three-deep at every position, with his main problem resting on decisions for center and fullback.

Many midwest football observers believe the Big Ten title will hinge on the outcome of the Northwestern - Michigan engagement at Evanston, Oct. 2.

Following Indiana and Michigan, Northwestern will meet Great Lakes, Ohio State, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Illinois.

Hitting Pitcher Wins National Softball Crown

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Sept. 21—Pitchers who can hit were hailed today as the heroes of the Amateur Softball association "world series" that crowned the Hammer Field Raiders of Fresno, Calif., and the New Orleans Jax Maids as champions from an original starting field of 50,000 teams.

Pvt. Kermit Lynch pitched a one-hitter and tripled home the only run as the California service team defeated Detroit Briggs 1-0 in the showdown game last night of the four-day tournament. Nifty Nina Korgan, the Walter Johnson of girl softball, hurled a one-hitter and drove in two runs with a pair of singles as New Orleans trimmed the Phoenix, Ariz., Ramblers, 7-0.

It's Bad Business To Brag About Pushing Yanks Around

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—For a number of years the most famous last word in the American league has been to start shouting about what you're going to do to the Yankees on any given occasion. The roof has a funny habit of falling in when you try to make it stick.

So it might be a good idea to tip the National leaguers they're looking for a leak in the gas meter with a lit match when they holler that (1) the Yankees can't do a thing against left-handers and (2) the three top St. Louis Cardinals southpaws figure to do fearful things to the bombers in the forthcoming world series.

So far this season, the uptown thumpers have gone to the mat with an assortment of 16 American league elbowers who throw from the button-hole side of their vests. And they've won 20 games and lost 12 in those which went to a decision. What's more, the Yanks haven't done too bad with a number of lefties in their six world series since '36—guys like Carl Hubbell.

And while the Cards' top three —Max Lanier, Alpha (Bet) Brazle and Harry Brecheen — all are nice fellows, you have to admit there isn't a Hubbell in the lot. Naturally, the '43 Yanks aren't the 1936 block-busters, either.

The way things shape up, however, Billy Southworth practically has to depend on his southpaws to turn the trick. As a matter of fact, the tossing on both sides is strictly out of the grab bag, because Marse Joe McCarthy's Yankee staff, aside from Georgia Spud Chandler, is mostly hot-and-cold, like boarding house coffee.

Right-hander Mort Cooper, a 20-game winner again, is the ace of the Cards' deck but he was clubbed out of there twice in last year's fall fuss and has been whacked with abandon — a well as ball bats — in two all-star appearances. Despite that, he'll probably get the call to lead off the first game.

Like Cooper, Chandler, the bellcow of the Yanks' soupbone society, has been largely a series flop-ola. He's had two cracks at series rivals — and each time wound up with a cold shower.

With 19 wins already this year, Spud is a cinch to hit 20 and become the Yanks' starter in the first game.

Toronto and Syracuse in Final Playoffs

By The Associated Press

It's Syracuse vs. Toronto in the final round of the International League playoffs that get underway in the Canadian city tomorrow night.

The Chiefs, aided by a nine-run first inning, downed the Newark Bears 14-4 in the sixth game of the semi-final round last night and earned the right to oppose the Leafs, who eliminated Montreal Sunday.

The winner of this best-of-seven series will oppose the American Association playoff victor in the little world series about Oct. 1.

Association Playoffs Get Under Way Today

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 21—Four closely bunched first division baseball teams open the American Association playoffs tonight.

The champion Brewers of Milwaukee were optimistic over their chances to come out on top in the playoffs. They go against the third-place Columbus Red Birds, defending junior world's champions.

Indianapolis, runner-up to Milwaukee in the regular season, plays host to fourth-place Toledo with the Indians.

The series, for three games out of five, will be at Milwaukee and Indianapolis again tomorrow night, shifting to Columbus and Toledo for the final encounters.

Dorris Guards His First String Gridders Against Injuries in Practice Sessions

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Harding High's second and third team members, all but two of whom had to be content with sitting restlessly on the bench throughout the Mansfield Tyger fracas, got their share of genuine, rough-and-tumble football last night, as they battled in one of the few and far between President practice scrimmages. The eleven that started for the Presidents Saturday night and remained intact for practically the entire thrilling contest, on the other hand, was given a comparative rest at stadium drill field last night, working out play assignments for the most part.

Coach Vic Dorris, realizing that injuries to number one Prexys probably would go a long way to spelling doom for Marion against Columbus West at the local stadium Friday night, said the starting line and backfield would do no contact work whatsoever in practicing this week.

Last night's scrimmage gave Dorris and Joe Petrich a good idea of how much the Prexy reserves have improved since the intra-squad game of two weeks ago, in addition to affording the Harding second and third teamsters and opportunity to dig in and scrap.

Columbus West, which will clash with the President's Friday night lost out in its season inaugural last Friday night to Springfield, 20 to 2. However, it must be remembered that the Springfield team is one of high repute in state scholastic grid circles and probably is even out of Harding's class by a shade.

Considerable time will be spent in Marion drills this week in trying to find a new punter or more likely in improving the toe ability of juniors Marshall Zuck and Elvin Beach, who did all the kicking against Mansfield.

Beach, first-line center and Zuck, alternate end with Norman Dillingerm, managed to average only 14 yards per boot Saturday night. In future tilts this year, including the West encounter, Harding punting had better best that average by many yards in order to eliminate any possibility of games lost through poor kicking. It just so happened against Mansfield that no critical situations arose where long and accurate kicking on the part of Beach or Zuck was required.

No injuries have been sustained by any Harding players of yet at least injuries of a serious nature. Fans and coaches alike are keeping their fingers in a crossed position just to insure the Presidents against any possible broken bones or what have you.

This week's practices will culminate under the lights inside Harding stadium Thursday night, customary time of all pre-game chief executive nocturnal tune-ups.

St. Mary's gridders opened practices last night for the Tiffin Calvert game at Tiffin Saturday. The Tiffin outfit was swamped by the up-and-coming Galion Orangemen Friday night, 33 to 6.

The crippled Irish were apparently outmanned by Delaware Wesleyan Friday night but still somehow came through with a 0 to 0 deadlock. The closest either team got to the other's goal line was in the fourth quarter when the Black Panthers surged to that stripe on the Irish side of the field. With first down on the Saint 10, the Panthers were belted back to their own 21 in the course of the next three plays and the locals took over at that point.

Only three of Hardings 1943 opponents-to-be came out on the posative side of the ledger in initial games last week. Those squads were Galion, which trounced Tiffin Calvert, the Ashland Hill toppers, who blanked Willard 13 to 0, and the Shelby Whippets, who posted an unexepectedly decisive 42 to 0 triumph over Norwalk. Findlay, Mt. Vernon, and Bucyrus all came out on the short end while Lima South played a 13 to 13 tie with the Middletown High team.

Don Preuninger, who Sunday was crowned the 1943 Marion county golf champion, has come a long way in the really short space of a year. He was an insecure second flight entrant in the 1942 county links event and lost out in the early stages of the tournament. He then shot a qualifying mark of only 88.

For this year's fifth annual county event, Preuninger fired an 83 qualifier, eight over par, and a medal of 75 set by Cliff Bills. Don, however, surprised everybody including himself, when he romped to three preliminary tourney wins and topped it off by whipping Bob Graham, a fellow Mar-O-Del golfer, 7 and 6 at the home course Sunday.

• • •

Preuninger's unlooked for victory shows you that perseverance, practice in golf as well as in any other sport, either in which individual performances or team work is outstanding, pays off in big dividends. Preuninger undoubtedly has put in many hours in smoothing out the defects in his game to rise to the pinnacle as the king of the county golfers.

The way the city's numerous bowling leagues are starting out this year, it looks as if the 1943-44 kegling season is going to be a banner one. The other night three leagues, rolling at both the Palace and Marion Recreation Centers, compiled fifteen 200-or better games. A high series of 837 already has been bowled. In past seasons, these marks were considered as top-flight even in mid-season.

HOUSE ADOPTS FULBRIGHT BILL

Favors U. S. Post-War Collaboration with Other Nations To Keep Peace.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — In an historic stand on foreign policy, the house overwhelmingly passed today the Fulbright resolution, placing congress on record in favor of United States postwar collaboration with other nations to maintain a "just and lasting" peace.

The first congressional pledge of its kind was made on a roll call vote of 360 to 29, or more than the two-thirds vote required for approval. The measure goes now to the senate, where it will be considered by the foreign relations committee along with several other resolutions similar in purpose but different in language and scope.

In sharp contrast to the narrow division in the strength of interventionists and non-interventionists during pre-Pearl harbor legislative fights, the top-heavy vote reflected a mounting congressional demand for American participation in world councils in peacetime as well as in war.

During two days of debate, that sentiment was reflected in speeches of influential legislators on both the Republican and Democratic sides of the aisle as they called for unity of action in outlawing war and leadership by this nation in the peace table planning.

Lecture-Recital Club Season Opened with Dinner Meeting

MRS. HARRY T. WILLIAMS

A dinner Monday evening at the Manor House opened the 1943-44 season for members of the Marion Lecture-Recital club. Mrs. Harry T. Williams of 180 Neil avenue took over the duties as president of the club and welcomed five new members in the club, Miss DeMoril Hafer, Mrs. Ralph Hancock, Mrs. J. W. Franz, Mrs. Fanny Benson and Mrs. Hugh Hay.

"Come as you are" invitations were issued for the dinner by the social committee of which Miss Wanda McMahan was the acting chairman, assisted by Miss Dorothy Buckley, Miss Ethel Faye Locker, Mrs. F. L. Hoover and Mrs. Leroy Schneider. Covers were placed for 55 active club members.

Navy Talk Given

For the program hour, Chief Petty Officer John J. Dugan gave a talk on "Know Your Navy Recruiting Station" and "The Real Purpose of Navy Activities." The talk was accompanied by moving pictures of Navy activities, shown by Richard Flanagan, second class petty officer of the local Navy recruiting station. Group singing of patriotic numbers by the club chorus, directed by Miss Jane Scott with Miss Hafer at the piano, provided a colorful musical setting for the program.

Mrs. O. D. Anderson, program chairman, told of the artists who will appear on the fall and winter programs, and Mrs. Clara Campbell gave a preview of the new music to be used by the club chorus. Mrs. Charles Feaver, president of the chorus, outlined the work for the year and announced the first meeting of the chorus, directed by L. G. Jones, for Oct. 7 at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Carter M. Patton, patron chairman, distributed the tickets to be sold by the active members. Other announcements included the Central district conference to be held at Columbus Oct. 20, tryouts for membership in the Junior Lecture-Recital club Monday evening, Sept. 27, at the home of Mrs. Harry J. Manta on South Seffner avenue, and the first meeting of the club Study group Monday evening at 7:45 at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Buckley of Bellefontaine avenue. Mrs. Karl Schell is junior club counselor, and Mrs. O. D. Anderson is president of the club Study group. Juniors wishing to try out for membership in the club are asked to call Mrs. Schell before Friday evening.

Opening Program

Eunice Parks of Cleveland, brilliant young pianist, will be the guest artist on the first club program on Oct. 11 at Hotel Harding. The young musician was declared winner in Ohio and the Great Lakes district of the nationwide biennial auditions for young artists sponsored by the National Federation of Women's clubs, in the spring of this year. Her recent appearances have included recital programs throughout Ohio, to Toledo, Loudonville, Canton, Akron and Cleveland, and her California debut was at the Trespers' theater in Hollywood. She appeared with the Cleveland orchestra under Rudolph Ringwall at a pair of the orchestra's regular winter concerts in Severance hall, and again as soloist with the orchestra at one of its weekly broadcasts with the Columbia network. She also has appeared as soloist with the Canton Symphony orchestra, Cleveland Heights Civic symphony, and at Chautauqua, N. Y.

Mrs. Williams has chosen as her slogan for the year, "Sing Our Way to Victory."

ALLIES GET U. S. TANKS

By International News Service

LONDON—British and Canadian armored forces are being supplied with American tanks and anti-tank guns, the authorities revealed today. They also got jeeps, tank destroyers, trucks and a large variety of supply and carrying vessels. The equipment may play an important role in the invasion of Europe, officials intimated.

OWI AGAIN TARGET OF ECONOMY DRIVE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The office of war information (OWI) was set up today as the target for the first economy drive of the fall session of congress.

"Their operations are a continuing menace," said Rep. Taber of New York, ranking Republican on the house appropriations committee. He urged a reorganization of OWI and removal of its administrator, Elmer Davis.

The New Yorker, who led last summer's fight which resulted in virtual extinction of OWI's domestic service, told reporters he believed Davis should be replaced by "a trained executive."

Mr. Davis has neither the capacity nor the desire to reorganize the agency," he said. "We need to put some kind of a business specialist at work down there to get things in order."

Taber also criticized the OWI overseas activities, which he charged were "getting worse instead of better," and emphasized that his views on Davis applied also to Robert Sherwood, playwright head of the overseas division.

Given approximately $33,000,000 out of a request for $48,000,000 last summer, OWI is understood to have gone before the budget bureau already for approval of a request to congress for additional funds.

Legislation to abolish the agency outright and transfer its functions to the state department is pending before a house committee, but no immediate action is expected. It was introduced by Rep. Barry (D-NY).

DOUBLE SERVICE EGGS

By International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore.—If medals were awarded for meritorious service in augmenting the nation's food supply, several chickens of the Portland area would deserve recognition. Mrs. J. L. Wykoff bought a dozen standard-sized eggs at her neighborhood grocery. Of the first nine she opened, eight had double yolks.

Attendance Drive Started by Co. H

A campaign to reach 100 per cent attendance for drill nights was announced by Capt. Carl Ebert, commanding officer of Co. H. of the Ohio State guard. Last week the attendance was 78 per cent and he issued an appeal for replacements to fill the vacancies left by members who are leaving for the service and for the men who are unable to attend because of working on night shifts. One recruit, Delmos A. Moore, was enlisted last night but Capt. Ebert said that to fill the vacancies four more will be needed.

Regular drill will be held tonight with Pvt. Harold Grant supervising first aid instructions. Capt. Ebert will talk on chemical warfare and Cpl. Lloyd Turner will be in charge of special operations.

PILOT KILLED IN UNION CO. CRASH

By The Associated Press

MARYSVILLE, O., Sept. 21 — An unidentified pilot was killed today when his plane crashed on the Koerner farm, seven miles south of here on Route 33.

Mrs. Willard O. McFarland, resident on the Koerner farm, said the plane circled the farm for about 15 minutes, then "seemingly disintegrated in the air and fell."

Motor of the plane was buried in the ground, and wreckage was scattered for a "considerable distance," Mrs. McFarland said. Her husband and a neighbor, first to reach the scene, said he found the Pilot's body in the wreckage.

Eastern Star Opens Fall and Winter Season

Several petitions were balloted on and a number received last night at the first meeting of the 1943-44 season for Lydia Chapter No. 83, Order of the Eastern Star. Announcement was made of the grand chapter meeting at Columbus Oct. 26 and 27. The charter was draped for Mrs. Jessie Clark and Miss Anna McMurray, charter members, and Miss Sarah Irvin, William Morral, Leslie Foraker and Mrs. Estella Kilbury. A memorial service will be conducted at the next meeting in two weeks. Mrs. Mary Williamson, worthy matron, presided.

Union County Couple Enter Mission School

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 21 — Rev. and Mrs. Paul G. Freyburg of Marysville have entered Hartford Seminary at Hartford, Conn., to prepare themselves for foreign missionary work. Rev. Freyberg returned from New Guinea this summer after a narrow escape through the jungles of the island from Japanese forces.

He was married to Miss Dorothy Boerger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt Boerger of Marysville, four weeks ago. After the war, both hope to go to New Guinea where Rev. Freyberg is enthusiastic about the country. He had served four years of a seven year term there. He still has occasional attacks of malaria contracted during his trek through the jungles.

STOCK TREND IS IRREGULAR

Profit Cashing Makes Sales Lively Early in Day, But Later Hours Quiet.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 — The stock market seemed somewhat fatigued today after five successive rising sessions and leaders generally took a rest in slightly irregular territory.

OATS LEADS RISE IN GRAIN PRICES

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 — Oats led a fractional rise in grain futures today on the board of trade where the market was bolstered by strength in cash markets and in Winnipeg wheat which was up about a cent.

The price for September oats rose above 78 cents for the first time since 1920, and although there was some profit-taking on the upturn, the advance was well maintained. Due to the high prices being paid in the cash market September oats was sold and December bought at a 4 cent differential.

Watch Out For Point Bargains

BY ALICE DENHOFF

After using red stamps for many months now, have you become point-wise or are you still a problem shopper?

First, do you buy point bargains,—that is, the low-point variety meats such as heart, liver, sweetbreads, kidney, which are so rich in iron and some vitamins. These variety meats, with their low points and high food value, are point bargains to be snatched up wherever available. A second point is to extend meat dishes. Such dishes as sliced franks escalloped with potatoes, country "boiled" dinner with vegetables, pork knuckles and sauerkraut, veal stew with tomato dumplings, lamb shanks braised with vegetables are tasty starters in this "extension" school of cookery. If you trim and bone meat yourself, add a plus to your score. Save bone and trimmings for soup stocks and for flavoring bland vegetables.

The Problem Shopper

You are a problem shopper if you cater too much to family likes and prejudices, for food dislikes are a peacetime luxury. Meat rationing is not likely to get any easier, and probably will get harder, so your family may as well make up its mind to like and be grateful for what is available, always remembering that we are the best fed people on earth.

Do not buy more meat than you need, cook it carefully, store it well, do not waste any leftovers. Don't delay and fuss over little purchases; try to avoid shopping rush hours. Carry a list of current point values with you, to save arguments that hold up the line. Know which of your stamps are valid and have them ready.

To flavor soups and vegetables, trim fat from roasts, steaks and chops and place it in upper part of double boiler over hot water. When fat is melted, strain and it is ready to use. To make a nice main dish out of leftovers, blanket croquettes in pastry and bake instead of fry. Serve with salad and a creamed vegetable.

Ready for War

By The Associated Press

RAPID CITY, S. D. — There'll be little panic on the L. E. Whitmore farm in the improbable event of an axis raid.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore live in a house only 400 yards off the Rapid City Army Air base, and only 70 yards from the machine gun range.

The whine of a ricochet no longer disturbs even the Whitmore chickens and turkeys. The coming and goings of Army planes are old stuff.

The SPORTSMAN

OUTLOOK FOR SHELLS

Conservation Commissioner Don Waters has received a statement from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service calling attention to the announcement of the War Production Board recently that it had approved the release of 82 and one-quarter million shotgun shells and 12 million rounds of center fire ammunition, as well as yet undetermined quantity of .22 caliber cartridges.

Because of Ohio's position in the number of hunting licenses issued it was expected that this state's share of the ammunition to be released would be among the top figures for the nation.

The statement from the federal service noted that "the limited supply of shotgun and rifle ammunition which will be released for the fall hunting season, together with supplies already in hunters' hands will, with judicious use, be sufficient for taking a reasonable crop of wild game."

The Outdoor Writers of America and other organizations, as well as state conservation departments had joined with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in a fact-finding survey, which resulted in the urging of the WPB to allow some additional ammunition to civilians to permit the taking of the annual crop of surplus game, keep predatory animals in check and protect farmers from game depredations to their crops.

The matter has been of keen interest in Ohio among farmers and sportsmen.

• • •

FIRE CAUTION GIVEN

Conservation Commissioner Don Waters today urged sportsmen, in fact everyone, to be careful of fires.

The fall fire season is at hand, he pointed out, and those who go on picnics, for a tramp through the woods or hunting, when the squirrel season opens, should be extremely careful. Every year much timber is wasted and other damage done by fires. Especially is this true in the forest areas.

• • •

CONTACT THE LANDOWNER

With the coming of the hunting season, Conservation Commissioner Don Waters again made his annual appeal that Ohio nimrods contact the landowner or tenant for permission before going on a farm to hunt.

At the same time he urged that the usual "ten commandments" of safety with guns be followed. Another safety precaution in squirrel hunting, where trees and brush are often thick enough to make vision at long distances questionable, it is a good idea to keep squirrels which have been shot out of sight—not allow them to dangle out of the coat pocket. Some other hunter might try to shoot the squirrel all over again!

• • •

THIS AND THAT

Open season in Ohio on wild ducks, geese, brant and coot, according to federal regulations, will be Sept. 25 to Dec. 3 . . . Labor day did not seem quite complete without "Hank" Pfeiffer and his Leafy Oak Coonhog Field trials at Kenton. Mrs. Pauline Pfeiffer Rueppp, who had expected to manage the 1943 classic which her late father had made famous, announced the family had decided to call it off on account of the emergencies of war.

Within 12 years, it is estimated that hevea trees will produce from 1,200 to 1,900 pounds of crude rubber an acre.

Old Timers Defeated in Second Clash with Universal Cooler

Universal Cooler, Marion's 1943 softball champion avenged a previous loss to the Old Timers' team, headed by John Clark, in a game played last night at Lincoln park for the benefit of the Union Station Canteen. The final score of the game, which attracted nearly 300 softball fans, was 3-0.

In a game played previously the Old Timers toppled the city champions by a score of 8-7. Managers of the two teams were uncertain today whether a "rubber" game would be possible. Elmer Smith, captain of the Old Timers, said he believed a third game would not be possible unless played on Sunday afternoon.

Bill Everly, flashy hurler for the Universal Cooler team, limited the Old Timers to three safeties, singles by Bobby Zahn and "Shorty" Richards and a double by Third Baseman Johnny Marshall. Everly issued one free pass and struck out three opposing batsmen in his seven-inning chore.

Woody Walters, on the mound for the Old Timers for the first five innings, gave up five hits, fanned five and issued two walks. Dale Schwaderer, once one of the city's most feared hurlers, set the Cooler batsmen down in order in the two innings he worked.

All the Cooler runs were chalked up in the third inning. Shortstop Don Atkinson, first Cooler player to face Walters in the third, walked, went to second on Darnell's single. Capt. Charlie Reid flied out. Second Baseman Roy Everly singled, scoring Atkinson and Darnell. Continuing the attack on Walters, Fowble singled and Everly scored. Hanovich struck out and First Baseman Potter was out, Marshall to Richards.

As a result of the game $46 was collected in behalf of the Canteen fund.

Score by innings:

Passion Play Film Shown at Gospel Center

A large crowd saw the No. 1 reel of "The Passion Play," presented last night by Rev. Robert Phillips at the Marion Gospel Center. The second reel will be presented tonight and the third and fourth on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the church.

Rev. William E. Budgett, pastor, preached on "Miracles, Past and Present," taking his text from Hebrews 13:8—"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and tomorrow." He pointed out that scores of miracles were performed in Christ's life while on earth, "yet," he said, "many of the same things are happening today."

Tonight Rev. Budget will preach on "A Fickle Crowd and the Last Supper."

Movie Publicity Man Talks to Lions Club

Two new members were accepted into the organization. They are Arthur Stiles and C. W. Melotte. President John Lacey urged committee chairmen to meet and prepare a report by the first week in October. A drive for increased attendance was discussed.

CASHIER SENTENCED

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 21—John A. Welsh, former assistant cashier of the Liberty bank at Ada, O., was sentenced to five years in federal prison today by Federal Judge Frank L. Kloeb when he pleaded guilty to defalcation of $16,000 of the bank's money.

In pleading for leniency his attorney said Welsh spent the money playing slot machines.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

MY FATHER stood for a second longer while Noel and Ronald seated themselves with Mary at the table, and then he handed me the paper containing the "personals" I had drafted.

"Just a second before you begin dictating, Margaret," he said. "Noel, have you anything special on for the next hour?"

"Not a thing, sir," Noel replied, "except to answer the door, and preserve the fiction that Mary's sprained ankle is in a cast."

Noel Is Excused

"Margaret can stay here and do that while you are gone," my father said. "So, on second thought, I'm going to excuse you from the copying of the personals and ask you to do an errand for me. Can you go almost immediately?"

"As soon as I get my hat," Noel said, and my father smiled.

"Then wait until I telephone," he said, and going to the telephone he gave a number which I recognized with interest and curiosity as that of the Underwood house where Harry Underwood and Ronald were domiciled.

"Harry?" he said, a few seconds later. "Any reason why you can't come over here right away? Good! I'm sending Noel over to stay while you're gone, so that we'll keep our promise to Lillian. As soon as he gets there, which ought to be within a few minutes, be ready to come back. I'll have him take a taxi, and you take the same taxi back to the Lansfield to save time. Come up to Margaret's suite. Good-bye."

He turned back to Noel, who already had his hat in his hand and was standing at the door.

Noel Gets Orders

"You heard me?" he asked. "Good! Get the first taxi you can, and keep it at the Underwood door till Harry comes out and takes it. I'll arrange it so you can come back here, as soon as I possibly can."

"You needn't hurry things on my account, sir," Noel said. "If Mary can manage without me, I can stay over there as long as you like."

"Katharine and I will take care of Mary," I struck in, and my father smiled.

"Then, in a patois which probably dates me," he said, "everything is jake, and I will go back to my daughter's suite. Telephone me, Margaret, as soon as the copies of the personals are ready."

"I'll do that," I promised, and then, as soon as the door closed behind him, I began dictating while Ronald and Mary wrote.

When I had finished reading, and they had written the last words, I took up the pencil which had been left out for Noel.

Madge Will Help

"Instead of dictating any more, I'm going to copy this draft," I said. "I'll check on the two you have written, just as a matter of form, and then you each make two more, as I shall do. The one who finishes first may have the doubtful reward of making out the ninth copy, and the original draft can be kept here."

"What a brain! What a brain!" Mary murmured, burlesquing awe. But she did not see the fist I shook at her, for she already was writing swiftly, and she easily out-distanced Ronald and me. Indeed, she was almost through with the ninth copy by the time we had finished ours.

I checked each carefully, and then went to the telephone and called my father.

"You're not finished already?" he queried, in an astonishment that gave me a heady gratification.

"But we are!" I told him triumphantly.

"I'll send Richard right over for the copies. Now is there anything he can bring to help you get ready for your trip?"

"Not a thing," I answered. "I'm all ready except for a little freshening up which I can do here. Oh, wait! If you're starting from here, ask Dicky to bring my hat, coat and purse with him. Otherwise I can pick them up when I go back."

Nothing More to Do

"You'll have time to get them here. Now there isn't a thing more for you and Mary to do except to see that Ronald has that letter ready to mail within the next fifteen minutes. I'll send him over to the postoffice with it."

Long association with my father has made me sensitive to the various nuances of his tones, and from somewhere there came the conviction that Ronald's trip to the postoffice was simply an excuse to get him out of the way for a little while. But my answer revealed nothing of my thought.

"I'll attend to it," I said, mercenarily.

"Good!" he approved. "As soon as he's finished, ask him to bring the letter over to me."

"Very well," I replied, and as I turned from the telephone, Ronald looked up from the desk to which he had gone back as soon as the copies of the personal were finished.

"Is he in a hurry for this letter?" he asked.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, Sept. 22

MODERATELY active and favorable conditions are shown in this day's mutual and lunar aspects, which indicate peculiar entanglements or affiliations, which may be turned to good account by shrewd and subtle manipulation, perhaps secret agreements of well thought out strategies. New things may be engineered under such tactics, perhaps innovations, novelties or bold initiative, but in all be alert to misrepresentation and fraud. Be wary with financial or legal writings.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of peculiar experiences in which strange contacts or agreements may cause future adventures both unwise and unprofitable. It may take much perspicacity, shrewdness and acumen to sidestep complications. Innovations, unique ventures or high-pressure enterprise may call for much discretion and sound sense, with financial documents subject to trickery or fraud. Be wary with strangers.

A child born on this day should be energetic, resourceful and talented in novel ways which may render it open to suspicion.

Treating Back

I MUST confess, as a criticism of my profession, that the average fellow with an average acute backache in a town of average doctors is not likely to get much of a break in the handling of his case.

Somebody has said that the only person interested in backache is the fellow who has one. There are three kinds of doctors into whose hands he is likely to fall: first, the doctor who gives him some chloroform liniment to rub on and then straps up the back with adhesive tape, no matter what the cause may be. Second, the manipulator who rubs and pounds and wrenches the back, often adding additional injury to the original one, and third, the rarity who really tries to find out what the cause of the trouble is and prescribes treatment accordingly.

Not, you understand, that strapping or manipulation may not be the correct thing, but it is a good idea to find out what exactly is the matter first.

The back is a pretty complicated structure. There are first the vertebrae, a succession of bones attached to each other by ligaments and separated by cartilaginous disks. Nearly anything in the way of injury or disease, such as arthritis, might happen to the vertebrae bones alone to cause backache. But then there are a large number of massive muscle groups which move the spinal column around, keep it in line, etc. Anything may throw a strain on them, from high heels to a slumped position at the school desk, and will produce a postural backache.

There are nerves coming out from the spinal cord through apertures between each vertebrae, and these may become inflamed. Then there are organs underneath—the kidneys, which may contain stones to produce backache (although the old conception of Bright's disease appearing as a pain in the back is pure bunk). Then, and this is often forgotten, there is the mental conception of the back. It bears the burdens of life. And some may think their burdens are too heavy and get a psychological backache.

So the task of the diagnostician in studying a case of backache is formidable one. The backache may be acute, due to a wrench or an injury. Here bracing the back to produce immobilization is possibly indicated. The adhesive strapping may be all right or it may require a plaster cast. Recurrent backaches may be due to posture or muscle inflammation, and here lies often the value of massage, manipulation, or some form of physical therapy.

Backache relieved by rest is likely to be due to injury, perhaps even small fractures of the vertebral facets. Backaches in the morning, getting better as the day wears on, is usually in the muscles—fibrous deposits or what not. Backache at night is likely to be arthritis of the vertebrae or to protrusion of the disks between them. Constant backache often denotes an infection of some part of the spine.

But there are penalties and should always be guessed by X-ray and careful physical examination.
